

General Biomedical Equipment: Ready When You Need It

Over the past twenty years, the number of medical devices per bed has increased by 62%. These devices are now more complex, require more training and certification to proficiently service, and increase demand for your clinical engineering department's time and resources. As a result, the mounting pressure and competing workload has led to a 90% increase in service costs for a typical hospital.

Alleviate the Burden and Improve Equipment Readiness with Agiliti

Reduce unnecessary rental costs and optimize your staff's time with easily accessible, patient-ready equipment. Certified and experienced Agiliti technicians provide onsite or on-demand services to supplement your clinical engineering team's workload. Ultimately, your general biomedical equipment is ready when you need it.
